ANNOUNCEMENT

World AIDS Day: Aristotle University Holds a Workshop on Awareness and Prevention of HIV

Thessaloniki, 27/11/2026

To mark World AIDS Day (1 December), the School of Medicine of Aristotle University, in cooperation with the Scientific Society of Medical Students of Greece (EEFIE), the Student Association of the School of Medicine and the Gender Equality and Anti-Discrimination Committee of Aristotle University, is organizing a Workshop to provide information on HIV infection. The Workshop will take place on Tuesday 1 December 2026 from 16:00 to 18:15 in the Anatomy Amphitheater of the School of Medicine of Aristotle University.

The event aims to provide reliable information and raise public awareness about HIV infection, highlighting significant advances in its prevention, diagnosis and treatment, as well as the social challenges that still accompany it.

Pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP), the causes of HIV and of stigma, ways to address them, as well as personal stories of people living with the HIV virus are only some of the topics that participants will discuss during the Workshop.

The Workshop is open to the public.
